Traffic, Shootings And Fire Account For Toll; 11 Die In North State

By UNITED PRESS

Thanksgiving Day throughout California followed a typically American pattern in marking up at least 16 deaths in traffic accidents, shootings and a fire. Five were in southern California.

George Schachter, 48, former New York clothing dealer, was murdered on a Hollywood street.

John Mason, 62, died of wounds received in what police believed was an attempted holdup of his San Francisco jewelry store.

Anyway, It's The "Big Game"

45th Stanford-California Clash On Saturday Finds Both Teams Doing Poorly

SAN FRANCISCO, (U)—From the outside looking in, the California-Stanford football game tomorrow, one of the two big games being played on the west coast, is the season's worst bargain.

It presents two teams whose aggregate production this year has been two victories, one tie, and seven touchdowns in 16 games.

California's eleven already has established a new university record for defeats—with seven chalked up against Stubby Allison's men as against two victories. Stanford, also enduring its worst season, has yet to win a game, tying one and losing six.

Yet 70,000 persons and possibly more are paying $4.40 each for seats for the contest between the two worst teams the rival schools ever had.

Tomorrow's will be the 45th meeting between Stanford and California in a series which began in 1892. The coast's oldest football feud has produced 20 wins for Stanford and 16 for California, with eight ties.

Germany covets the Schleswig-Holstein area of Denmark (I), and threatens Norway (C) for her part in the City of Flint case. The Nazis also have mighty armies on the borders of the Netherlands (2), Belgium (3) and Switzerland (4). GERMAN BLOCKADE OF BRITAIN VIEWED AS REAL MENACE

Battle Lines For "Starve Or Be Starved" Conflict Appear To Be Drawn; London Hopes Next Year May Bring Hitler's Downfall

By LOUIS F. KEEMLE
United Press Cable Editor

Germany's "blockade" of Great Britain by submarines, airplanes and mines is emerging as a real menace.

The lines were drawn and it became a question of which side could starve the other out. Thus the decisive phase of the war may have been reached.

The opponents, it seems, have recognized that neither can break through on the western front. The war will be fought and decided then, on the issue of which can starve the other out.

Such a war may take a long time, conceivably even the five years that Hitler says he told Goering to prepare for. There has been a feeling among the allies that it may not be nearly so long, and may even end next year.

Such optimism was based on the belief that the tight, efficient blockade which the allies have clamped on Germany will sap her resources in short order.

Coupled with that is the hope of internal revolt in Germany. The British think there is a chance that the people, without the stimulus of a "Blitzkrieg" victory by the Fuehrer which was dangled before them in prospect, will lose their morale. Revolt among the millions of subjugated Poles, Czechs and other minorities in the Reich is counted on to aid.

Also, the British think there is the chance of a fatal split between Hitler and his generals.

The fierce campaign on British shipping which Germany has let loose introduces another factor, however. The British had not counted on such effective retaliation.

The tide of warfare swirled close-er today to Europe's small neutral nations.

It was disclosed that a U-boat had sunk the steamer Slidrecht in the Atlantic Ocean.

Both the allies and Germany repeatedly warned neutrals of the dangers and blamed "the enemy." Nazis said that the Reich was taking drastic new war measures against the allied blockade of German exports and that neutrals must keep out of the way.

Great Britain and France, having repeatedly reported Germany was about to invade Belgium and Holland, charged the Germans with sowing magnetic mines by airplane to the peril of all neutral shipping. Approximately 25 ships have been sunk in the last week.

Belgium and Holland protested to Britain against the allied decision to seize German exports on the grounds that neutral shipping would suffer most severely.

In Rumania, a cabinet crisis caused by German demands for a bigger supply of Rumanian raw materials resulted in formation of a new government headed by Premier George Tataru, known as a friend of France and expected to resist Nazi pressure by depending either on the allies or by attempting to play Soviet Russia against Germany.

Germany, blockaded at sea, must keep her supply lines open through the Balkans at all costs and Rumania is one of the most important sources of materials in southeastern Europe.

Caught between the Nazis and Soviet pinners, the Rumanian position appears as dangerous on the surface at least as that of Poland a few months ago.

ASSAULT CASE JURY VACATED

Vandergrift Pleads To Simple Assault; Gets Sixty Days In Jail

The venire issued out of Superior Court in preparation for the trial Monday of Bart Vandergrift, charged with felonious assault, was recalled and vacated Friday morning by Judge George H. Thompson after the defendant had entered a guilty plea to a charge of simple assault.

The sentence was sixty days in the county jail.

Consenting to withdrawal of the felony charge, District Attorney Henry S. Lyon noted that the state had been unable to locate the knife allegedly used by Vandergrift in an assault upon Howard Barnett at the Gold Nugget cafe at Shingle, and that this circumstance was a weakness in the state's case.

Prior to the passing of sentence by Judge Thompson on the plea of guilty to the simple assault charge, the defense indicated its hopes that a light sentence might be passed.

This brought comment from the court that the court cannot consider lightly a bar room brawl and that the defendant should not attempt to hide behind the skirts of his family in facing judgment arising out of such circumstances.

Vandergrift had been arrested on the complaint of Howard Barnett that he had been assaulted by the defendant with a knife. The two men are miners in the district.

Defense Counsel C. W. Pearson had drawn from Barnett at the preliminary hearing an admission that he had had several drinks during the day prior to the time of the assault.

Bones Studied By Officials

Pieces Of A Skeleton Found At Georgetown Are In Coroner's Custody

Officials were at Georgetown Friday forenoon in connection with a report that a skeleton had been found buried in the ground by a man digging a cellar.

Sheriff George M. Smith, Deputy Ralph Jones and Coroner A. J. Orelli went to the North Side and the coroner brought back with him what he said was "about twelve bones" which he doubted were human, but which, he said he would ask County Physician A. A. McKinnon to examine to determine if they are human.

Coroner Orelli did not know the name of the man who found the bones but reported that the find was on what is known as the "old Dr. Hickman place."

The coroner said that if it was possible the bones are those of a human, they would be those of a child, in his judgment. He said the bones had been buried with lime and that he estimated they had been buried longer than five years but not more than ten years.

It was indicated that the doctor's ruling on the bones, as to whether they are human or not, will determine the future course in the case.

Roosevelt Denies Kennedy Has Been Called Home

WARM SPRINGS, Ga., (U)—Though the American embassy in London announced that Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy had been called home for consultation, a White House statement denied it today.

The statement, authorized by President Roosevelt, specifically denied that Kennedy and the ambassadors to France, Belgium, and Poland, had been ordered home. It said that Kennedy had asked for a Christmas leave and it had been granted.

CHURCHES KEEP THANKSGIVING

Day Passes Quietly With Worship Services Held During The Forenoon

Thanksgiving Day in Placerville passed quietly, with the various offices and the principal places of business closed throughout the day.

Pharmacies were closed during the afternoon and a number of the gasoline service stations closed soon after the noon hour and remained closed for the balance of the day.

Public observance of the day took the form of services in the various churches. There was a mass of Thanksgiving followed by Benediction at St. Patrick's Catholic Church. Services were held in keeping with the day at the Christian Science Church.

Union services were held at the Church of Our Saviour in which the members of the Federated Church and of the Nazarene Church joined the members of the Episcopal Church for a program which was conducted by the Rev. Rex A. Barron, rector.

The sermon was given by the Rev. Harold Morehouse, who spoke on "Thanksgiving and Prosperity." The choirs of the Federated Church and of the Episcopal church, robed, combined for the service. The Rev. Downing, pastor of the Nazarene Church, was unable to share in the program, being called from the city.

The afternoon passed quietly with numerous gatherings of families and other friends in various homes. A cool but yet balmy autumn day lured many parties of motorists out of doors in the later afternoon for short motor trips about the county.

TODAY'S PROFILE

By UNITED PRESS

Joe C. Trees and Michael L. Benedum, "world's No. 1 wildcat oil operators," are the Damon and Pythias of the oil industry.

Partners for 42 years, "Joe," whose recent 70th birthday celebration was a civic occasion in Pittsburgh, and "Mike," prominent also in democratic circles, and three months his partner's senior, have "wildcatted" together over the entire Western Hemisphere.

In one of their first "strikes," they played a blind man's "hunch," leased a blind farmer's land and struck spouting oil.

They followed an Indian legend about "buried treasure," and drilled the biggest oil well ever drilled in West Virginia.

The pair moved on to Illinois. They ignored a Standard Oil man's warning that they were "fools" and leased a lot of cheap land, and discovered the famous "Sasey Field." They moved down to Shreveport, La., where people said there "just wasn't any oil," and discovered the "Caddo Field," then biggest in history, sold it to Standard Oil for $6,000,000.

And so it went, with monotonously fabulous success—they found and sold the Tampico field in Mexico; they braved tropical jungles and savage natives to start a field only four degrees from the equator in South America; West Texas was next, and under the miraculous Benedum-Trees touch previously worthless land made the University of Texas one of the richest schools in the country.

When they finally decided to settle down, they chose Pittsburgh. It was depression time, but the partners, unlike most wildcatters, had not squandered their money.

But Trees spent most of his money for a "Helping Hand" organization for homeless and destitute men, and a share in the "Boys' Club," a Rotary organization for underprivileged children, members of which he entertained on his 2000-acre "Treedale Farms." He still plays host to 600 to 700 boys every summer.

Joe Trees, who once played football for Western University of Pennsylvania—now Pitt—and who was one of the first subsidized players in college football history, looks like what he is at heart—a Pennsylvania farmer.

Mike Benedum looks more like a fatherly professor of some small college. A prominent financial backer of the democratic party in recent elections, Benedum explains that he and "Joe" are too busy to think of retiring.

"Joe's problems have been my been his, and that's the way it will go on being."

Sports Parade

By HENRY McLEMORE

NEW YORK, (AP)—It was with much gratification that I learned of Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt's acceptance of the presidency of the Belmont race track.

Indeed, it gave me a thrill, because we are so much alike. Save for a few minor traits possessed by him and not by me, such as youth, good looks, personality, wealth, and a love for hard work, there is very little difference between us.

Because of what I consider to be a great bond between the young millionaire and the Morris Plan's most consistent customer, I feel no hesitancy whatsoever in suggesting to him ways and means of bettering Belmont Park when it opens with pari-mutuel machines next year.

The first thing he wants to install are 25 cent or "two-bit" pari-mutuel windows. This idea of having two dollars as the smallest bet is no good. Vanderbilt will object to this, and so will lots of other misinformed persons, on the grounds that a man who can't afford to bet more than 25 cents shouldn't be given a chance. But take it from a man whose one principle is to bet more than he can afford, there is no sense in their argument. The only thing that a $2 minimum does is to make 25 cent bettors bet $2.

Vanderbilt should see to it that there are more winners at Belmont Park. To hell with improving the grounds, by such means as putting birds of paradise on the infield lake, or planting rare and exotic flowers, or adding two or three paved entrances and exits. Let's have more horses to do what the form chart says they are capable of doing. No one goes to a race track to enjoy the scenery. I would much rather stand in an ash heap and watch a winner come home than sit in a replica of the Taj Mahal and watch the horse I had wagered on come staggering in fifth or sixth. The only thing really pretty at a race track is your horse's nose in front of the judges' stand.

By all means let Vanderbilt see to it that all customers of Belmont Park are equipped with Halloween costumes and false faces when they enter the place. These are to be slipped on when anyone is lucky enough to get a winner and go to the cashier's window. There is nothing so disheartening as to be recognized by a tried and true friend while you are cashing a ticket. Because nine times out of ten the T. and T. friend will approach you and put the bite on you for a few dollars to bet on the next race. There is no refusing such a request as this, because you are caught ready-handed, so to speak. Imagine the joy of smirking behind your Halloween mask as you see the dear old pals line up to watch the cashiers' windows in the hopes of seeing someone they know.

Of course, this mask business will work both ways. I'm not so sure I could spot my pals through their eye slits. Are you?

Free lunches should be a part of every well run race track. All touts should be belled like cats. There should be one fixed race on every card, and it should be announced early enough in the day so that you have time to send Junior home for his pig bank.

I am forwarding these suggestions to Mr. Vanderbilt with a particularly plaintive postscript asking that he get a photo finish camera that just once in a while, will take a picture of yours and my horse coming in first.
